Social and Personal

The wedding of Miss Amy Deane Williams to Mr. Hugh Phillip Powell was celebrated at 6 P. M. yesterday in the First Baptist Church, the pastor, the Rev. Dr. George Cooper, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Gardner, of Grace Street Baptist Church, being the celebrants.

The church aisles were carpeted in white, and altar decorations were in white, the color scheme of the wedding being in green and white. Professor Leslie Watson, the church organist, directed the music.

The bride came in on the arm of her father, Mr. John C. Williams, the groom and his best man, Mr. William Prince, waiting her at the altar. Her flowers were white roses and lilies. The bride's gown was white mousseline de sole above tulle. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley; her veil was held by sprays of the same flowers.

The maid of honor, Miss Kate Aubrey Williams, wore green silk multi-colored gloves and carried a bouquet of white gladioli. The bridesmaids, Miss Mary Northrup, of Wilmington, N. C.; Miss Eva Atkinson, of Fredericksburg, Va.; Miss Elsie Goddard, Miss Alta Cooper, Miss Katherine Foster and Miss Alice Lettew, all in white, with green sashes, black hats and gloves. They also had white chrysanthemums. The groomsmen included, Mr. Fred Pfeiffer, of Petersburg; Mr. D. C. O'Flaherty, Mr. Mulford Crutchenfield, Mr. Robert S. Christian, Mr. Brooks Birdson.

The wedding was followed by a reception in the home of her parents, No. 70 West Grace Street. Later Mr. and Mrs. Powell left for a northern tour. They will return to make their home on West Avenue.

They are both well known and most highly esteemed members of Richmond society. Mr. Powell is very successful in business and has a host of friends. The dining room was in white and green, the bare table having a beautiful centerpiece of autumn leaves, a bowl of roses, white candles shaded in white and white shades.

Mrs. Samuelson and Miss Grigg were REBUJING.

A Woman Makes Stude's Over.

A lady who used a famous food for convenience made a discovery that she tells of as follows:

"I had been sick for a long time and was a nervous wreck, suffering from headache, faintness, distended stomach, indigestion and great heart disturbances. Two physicians said that I had a valvular trouble of the heart. I was a widow, living alone, and was often too ill to get my meals, leaving of Grace Nuts as a ready cooked food. I purchased a package for convenience only, thinking it would at least keep me from starving."

"It was delicious, and after a week's diet, with little heads Grape-Nuts and cream, I had improved so as to be a wonder to myself. Then I took on Postum Coffee in place of tea and coffee, and continued the steady use of both Grape-Nuts and Postum. This was a year ago, and today I am a well woman. My heart disease is gone, along with all my other bad symptoms."

"Some time ago I took charge of a Boarding Club of students of our University, and following their instructions I gave them luncheons made up of biscuits or light bread, cold meat and coffee. The result on the students was that many of them suffered from headaches, dullness and inability to apply themselves to study after luncheon."

"I knew that the trouble was the wrong selection of food, and it was not long before I persuaded some of them to take only Grape-Nuts with cream for luncheon. This worked like a charm, and one after another followed the example, until now Grape-Nuts is the principal article of diet for breakfast and luncheon in the club."

"Some of the professors in the University have noticed the change, too, for the student's brain, when fed on Grape-Nuts, is clear and active, the memory is good, and his ambitions appear to be heightened, because the body and brain are in good steady condition." Grape-Nuts are sold by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Look in each package for a copy of the famous little book, "The Road to Wellville," assisted in receiving by Miss Jennie

DAILY FASHION HINTS.

GIRL'S COAT.

Cape and coat effects continue their reign, and new applications of the cape line idea are seen daily, but none are prettier than the one shown here in the charmingly youthful coat of red lady's cloth and black braid. The coat is made with front and back, good round button, and the skirt and sleeves by shoulder and under-arm seams. In fact, these are the only seams in the coat, so one can readily see how easily and quickly it can be put together. The cape collar also sews in the neck edges, thus saving a lot of time in the finishing. The sleeve is of bishop shaping and is ornamented by bands of braid. If economy is necessary

How many men and women, in high places and in low, might better life, and brighter hours, and build up homes, and radiate assemblies, by the faith and the practice of the small, sweet courtesies that are so cheap to the giver and so precious to the receiver.

COL. GRAVES ON MONTAGUE

Pays the Governor Splendid Editorial Tribute.

SAVED OLD MAN HALSTEAD

Virginia's Executive Led Cheering for the Famous Journalist at Norfolk, and Then Captured His Hearers With Fine Sentences.

The Atlanta News of Saturday, October 19th, contains the following beautiful editorial tribute to Governor Montague, written by Colonel John Temple Graves, editor of the paper, and famous as a brilliant platform lecturer and writer:

At the magnificent mass meeting held in Norfolk on Thursday night Andrew J. Montague, Governor of Virginia, did a graceful and courteous thing.

The occasion was the first public rally in the interest of the great Jamestown Tercentenary, which the people of Tidewater Virginia are preparing to celebrate in the summer of 1907. The list of speakers was illustrious, and Murat Halstead, who was introduced seventh upon the list. The famous old journalist, now almost decrepit, is essentially a writer rather than a speaker, and his earlier words came haltingly and slowly.

The audience, keenly strung, grew restive and impatient in their seats. Some of them went away. The moment was critical with failure for the speaker, and incidentally for the evening. Suddenly Governor Montague, occupying the center of the stage behind the speaker, leaped forward in radiant attitude of interest and attention. The sentence on the lips of the speaker was trivial, if patriotic, but the taciturn executive smiled and clapped his hands. The Virginians, taking the cue from their courteous Governor, broke into applause and the Governor saved to Halstead and to the exposition.

It was as clear a triumph of tact and courtesy as ever radiated a public assembly.

IS WARMLY PRAISED.

Later, at the banquet at the hotel, there was a long list of speakers, eloquent, ambitious and well prepared. The Governor was set to the inspiring sentiment of "Virginia," and he is an orator of power and brilliant force. But when he was introduced, with a fine sense of the propriety, he spoke four sentences, thrilling with loyalty for his State, lifted his glass, and sat down, leaving the floor to the guests of the evening.

It was in little things like these that Andrew Jackson Montague stamped his greatness on the occasion as one of the finest and most tactful gentlemen of Virginia.

For it is in little things that we see the gentleman—the small, sweet courtesies, the unthought grace of life, the cheap delight of living.

Consideration for others is the quality of a good heart and a brave one. In man it marks the worth of knighthood, and in woman it is the loveless grace of the heart. Sometimes it is nothing, and sometimes it is the noblest of all. Sometimes it passes through the deep waters of sacrifice, purified and glorified into the heroic.

But however it comes and whenever, it sweetens life for the agent and the object. The heart of the beneficiary is warmed to reciprocal color, and the soul of the considerate is exalted with the consciousness of dignity and altruistic philanthropy.

How many men and women, in high places and in low, might better life, and brighter hours, and build up homes, and radiate assemblies, by the faith and the practice of the small, sweet courtesies that are so cheap to the giver and so precious to the receiver.

WILL RAISE $100,000

Baptists Will Try to Report This Much This Year.

A desperate effort is being made by the Baptists of the State to swell the report of the association this year to $100,000. The body meets next month in Staunton, and the books are now being closed up. Reports will be presented, and it is expected that they will show the success of the effort.

Last year the association came sufficiently near the $100,000 mark to bring that sum into clear sight. It is now gathered that the receipts for each of the boards, except the orphanage, were on the whole, about $100,000. The total amount received by Treasurer Jacob was on the corresponding date in 1902. The decrease in gifts to the orphanage is due to the fact that larger sums were gathered for the main building in 1902 than in 1903.

Great preparations are being made for the meeting of the association. Among the names mentioned for the office of moderator is Judge W. W. Moffett, of Salem, Va.

ALABAMA TO SEND DR. CURRY'S STATUE

Marble Representation of the Great Educator and Diplomat for Statuary Hall.

Richmond people will be interested and pleased to know that the Legislature of Alabama has at last decided to place the statue of Dr. J. L. M. Curry in the Statuary Hall as one of the representatives from the State, though Dr. Curry was born in Georgia.

The proposition met intense opposition for some time, and there was a deadlock in the Legislature for weeks, many members being unwilling that the statue of a man not a native of the State should represent it in Statuary Hall. The proposition was on this ground only, all agreeing enthusiastically that Dr. Curry's great work for the cause of popular education entitled him to the honor. The bill making the appropriation became a law without the signature of the Governor of the State, the Executive declining to sign it on the ground that the action was precipitate. He paid a high tribute to Dr. Curry despite the technical points raised.

Dr. Curry claimed Alabama as his State and represented it in the Confederate Congress. He formed alliances with Virginia during his service there that held him to Virginia the remainder of his life, and his dust lies in Hollywood, Ark. As he was married Miss Thomas, of Richmond.

His Father Dead.

Mr. L. C. Reed, general manager of the Southern trade of the Oliver Chilled Iron Works, was called to Chicago Sunday last by the sudden
